TWO WRONGS

It's not quite honest to ignore one vital fact about the national defense mediation board, preoccupied so soon after its organization with an outbreak of labor trouble in one of the country's most important steel plants at Bethlehem, Pa.

That is the fact the board, representing organized labor, management and the public, created for the purpose of bringing public opinion to bear on participants in labor disputes to hasten conciliation and prevent work stoppages.

This is being done in the name of national defense. It represents a reversal of government tactics from the pre-defense era when it was New Deal policy to condone, even to encourage, labor friction and work stoppages.

Theoretically, the mediation board will use the pressure of public opinion impartially on employers and employees. To the extent that it influences the latter, in the name of the administration, the board's influence will represent a departure from previous policy.

Possibly if the departure had been made sooner, or better yet if organized labor never had been given reason to believe that government favored it exclusively in its dealings with management, much worry might have been averted.

Belatedly, moved by the exigencies of production in an emergency, the government has recognized that its function in negotiations between workmen and their employers is properly that of mediator, not partisanship. An error is being corrected. All thoughtful Americans, including a probable majority of the leaders of labor, hope it has not been permitted to go uncorrected too long. In the past, government has made the mistake of favoring each side, in turn. In each case, it made an mistake. It now seems ready to admit that two wrongs can't make a right.

CUSTOMER'S MEN

It is a tremendous thing, when a citizen stops to think about it, that half a million of his fellow patriots are going to help sell government securities to the American public.

These customers' men and women will be representing the biggest firm there is. Theirs will be a heavy responsibility. Heretofore, government securities were disposed of the way they used to dispose of groceries and other commodities, before the high-pressure era started. They were available to those who knew where to go when they wanted them.

One of the first selling problems that will confront some of the members of the new sales organization is the hard-fisted attitude of the small operators who comprise the bulk of prospects for the kind of campaign the government is preparing. They aren't used to the idea of big financial operations. They are wary by nature.

The customers' men and women will have to explain to some of them that the government intends to be mighty careful with their money. They may bring up instances that have come to their attention where the government spent money as though it were throwing away water. They may be inclined to argue that if the government is going to spend unspent billions for the defense of the United States, Great Britain et al it should be thinking about saving a billion or so on its other expenditures. These are samples of some of the questions that may be raised.

It may turn out to be a mighty good thing all around if arrangements are made in advance to give good, straight answers to them—good for the little operators who are puzzled, good for the people who are going to represent the government to the little operators, and good for the government.

GIBBON DID IT

Latest news from Rome and about Rome may send some thoughtful American boy to the encyclopedia to look up Edward Gibbon. He was the studious English lad of the 18th century who used an unusual talent for lucid writing and tremendous capacity for correlating facts to produce "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," one of the monumental historical works of all time.

It is a striking fact that Gibbon, who knew as much about the Roman empire as any one man ever lived, only visited Rome briefly. He obtained his factual background from libraries, which was not illogical in view of the fact the empire had been gone so long that it was wholly in the province of historians. In any event, Gibbon did such a noble job of compilation and explanation that when he finished his gigantic work in 1787, seven years before his death, he knew he had written something for the ages.

While it calls for a lot of imagination to compare Benito Mussolini's resurrection of the Roman empire with the original article, that is precisely what Mussolini believed he was doing. He made a certain amount of progress; he made the trains run on time, for instance, and he succeeded in getting himself compared with Julius Caesar. He also succeeded in bringing down the barbarians from the north and putting Italy at their untender mercy, thus compressing into less than a generation the same cycle that originally spanned the years from about 180 to 1145 A. D. Opportunity is tapping on the forehead of another Gibbon—somewhere.

BLEST BE ALLIANCES THAT BIND

The third relich's collection of treaties is impressive. On top, with the ink scarcely dry, is the paper that binds Yugoslavia to the Axis. Far down toward the bottom is an agreement with Italy. There are pacts with the Czechs, Hungarians, Bulgars, Russians, Rumanians, even the French.

Treaty-making leaves Americans more befuddled than convinced. They are suspicious of all written agreements; all their mothers told them never to sign anything cooked up the other fellow. It seems to them that far from being convincing, Germany's numerous agreements are testimonials of bad faith. It isn't in the cards for them to be anything else.

Adolf Hitler in "Mein Kampf" says, in the section on alliances: "National fates are solidly welded together only through a perspective of common triumph, in the sense of common gains, conquests, in short, a joint expansion of power."

It would seem, therefore, that if Hitler still believes treaties should be mutually beneficial his diplomats must have promised virtually everything under the sun, including the moon, to the minor league statesmen who have been scrawling their signatures under watchful German eyes. The end of the war would find Germany, if victorious, busier trying to satisfy suckers than a burying society in a plague.

A likelier possibility is that Germany has abandoned its fuhrer's theory of alliances and promises the suckers nothing but a whirlwind bombing if they don't sign up. The treaties are solely for the purpose of convincing the gullible that things are going more smoothly than they are. No government ever made a treaty it didn't have to make for its own security.

DAILY LENTEN PRAYER

BY REV. JOHN BAUMAN

President, Ministerial Association

O God of our salvation, we thank Thee that Thou hast revealed Thy saving will in Thy word and of old didst forecast the sufferings of our Redeemer Jesus Christ. We pray Thee by Thy Holy Spirit to stimulate our hunger and thirst for the knowledge of Thy redeeming will, that we may diligently search the Scriptures, which testify of the Redeemer whom Thou didst prepare before the foundation of the world. Grant that by the increase of our understanding of Thy redeeming love we may be established in the saving faith and made stronger for Thy service. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE STARS SAY:

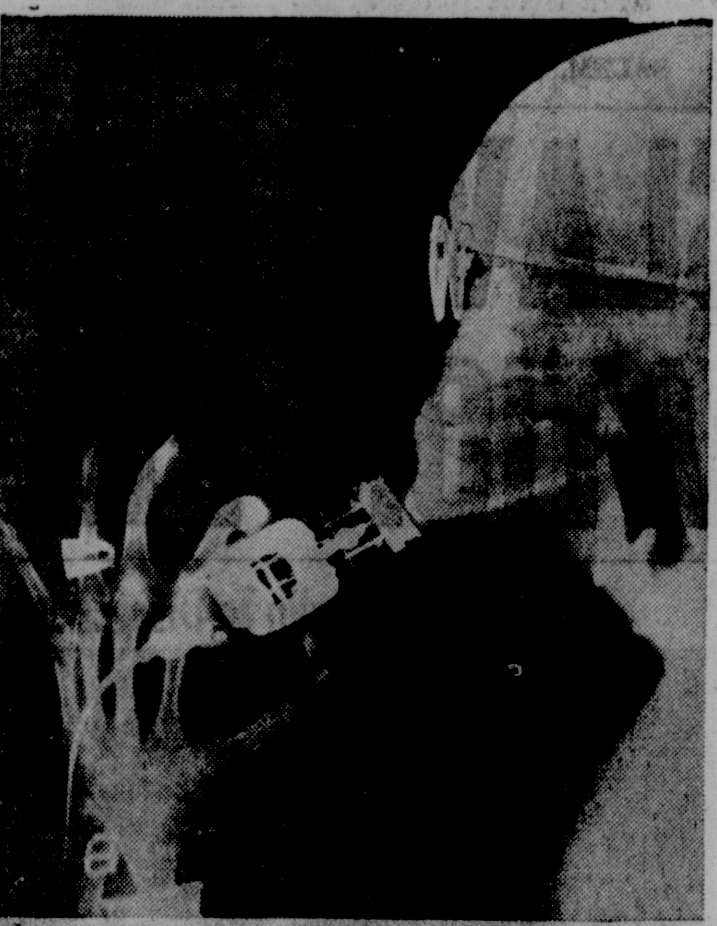

For Friday, March 28

Rather complex and complicated situations may be expected on this day, according to certain conflicting or confusing planetary operations. While in routine matters things may run in customary grooves, yet there are outstanding trends of a unique intriguing or strategic importance which may gravitate around public, community or fraternity interests. These seem to affect the inner private, emotional, cultural or spiritual life in its various creative expressions.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in a year of unique, mysterious or intriguing experiences, with their emotional, cultural and inner creative urges under rather confusing or bewildering but constructive impetus. This may be in connection with group, collective or humanitarian projects, which will prove materially gainful and spiritually satisfying.

A child born on this day, while having many practical and constructive abilities, may also possess spiritual, emotional, visionary or over-idealistic tendencies. It may be richly endowed with excellent creative urges on all phases of its being.

AUTO DRIVER NEEDS GOOD SIGHT

Motorist With Defect Is Menace On Road

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Automobile accidents, which cause more than 30,000 deaths a year in the United States, are due, in most cases, to carelessness, impatience and taking chances. A certain number are due to eye defects in drivers and these have been catalogued by Dr. Conrad Berns of New York City after prolonged study.

Dr. Glendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

A California study showed that 26 per cent of all motorists involved in fatal accidents had a low visual acuity in one eye and that none of them knew it. Dr. Berns catalogues visual requirements for motorists as follows:

Visual acuity—should have 20-40 in one eye with or without correcting lenses providing there is no active eye disease; 20-200, or better, in the other. For persons who do not come up to this requirement a limited license is recommended.

Visual fields—Field of vision to 70 degrees temporally in each eye as tested with 5 mm. test object and 7 foot candles of illumination.

Judgment of distance—All drivers should be able to touch a white ball brought down in front of them from above at a distance of 3 feet, four out of five times. If the applicant cannot pass this test his speed should be limited to thirty miles per hour at night and forty miles per hour during the day.

Color vision—Normal perception of red, green and yellow.

Light sense—Drivers should have rapid adaptation to darkness after adaptation to light. The threshold for light difference should be normal.

Binoocular vision—Normal binoocular vision at meters with the Worth test or one of its modifications.

If tests for binocular vision cannot be performed accurately either because of binocular instability or the fact that one eye is totally or partially blind, a limited license should be given, limiting the speed to forty miles per hour during the day and thirty miles per hour at night.

Motor anomalies—That is to say trouble with the external muscles of the eye. These can be tested by a technical test too complicated to describe here but if an applicant cannot pass this test he should be given a limited license.

The one-eyed driver is a particular problem. He should never

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. R.: "What causes an inflamed and irritated condition of the colon resulting in too much mucus and diarrhea? Does prolonged treatment of Kaolin and aluminum hydroxide injure the acid-forming glands of the stomach?"

Answer—There are a number of conditions which cause irritation and inflammation of the colon, or large bowel. One of these is amoebia, resulting in amoebic dysentery. Other germs will cause ulcers in the colon. Simple inflammation and irritated colon with mucus and diarrhea is usually caused by an underlying nervous condition. The use of Kaolin and aluminum hydroxide over quite a period of time has not been found to be injurious to the acid-forming glands of the stomach.

Radio Programs

Radio listeners here and elsewhere in the United States expect to experience improved reception on Saturday as a result of the "wholesale moving" of radio stations on that date.

There should be fewer squeals, squawks and groans coming out of the average radio loudspeaker, and most of the nation's radio stations will be found at different places on the dial.

All this is the result of a North American broadcast treaty, ratified recently and providing new frequencies for most of the standard broadcasting stations.

Henceforth many stations broadcasting at the same place on the dial have interfered with each other, making good reception impossible. This will be minimized through the agreement.

So far as the Salem public is concerned, the change will become apparent when radios are tuned in for favorite programs Saturday. All stations starting at 740 kilocycles on the dial and going up will have moved from 10 to 30 kilocycles.

All stations below 740 kc., however, will remain where they are. For example, WTAM at Cleveland will be located at 1100 instead of 1070; WHK, Cleveland, at 1420, instead of 1390; WCLE at Cleveland does not change, remaining at the same place, 610.

WHBC, Canton, will be heard at 1290 kc., instead of 1200; KDKA, Pittsburgh, will be heard at 1020; WJR, Detroit, at 760; WADC, Akron, at 1350. In all, 795 stations will be "moved".

Automobiles Are Pushed Into River In Steel Strike

Violence accompanies the steel strike at the Bethlehem Steel company plant at Bethlehem, Pa., as officials, union leaders and federal mediators sought an end to the strike, called by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee following an attempt by the Employees Representation Plan to hold an election at the plant. The S. W. O. C. claims the E. R. P. was a company-controlled union. These automobiles were pushed into the Lehigh river. They are believed to belong to workers who reported for work and remained in the plant when violence developed on the outside.

Theatre Attractions

The writer of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Road Back" produces another stirring screen story with the adaptation of his "Flotsam" for the films. "Fo Ends Our Night", showing at the State Friday and Saturday, brings together Fredric March, Margaret Sullivan, Frances Dee and a promising newcomer, Glenn Ford.

The story of people whose lives and heritage have become things of great regret, who are torn from their homes and the soil that brought their families life and are left to wander aimlessly from port to port, is one of the author's most brilliant works.

In the hands of the excellent players, the film is the story of many people, told through the poignant love story of Miss Sullivan and young Ford, political refugees, and of March and Miss Dee, fugitives from the Nazi concentration camps, to which each was sent when the party rose to power.

Concluding tonight at the State is the James Stewart-Hedy Lamarr comedy-drama "Come Live With Me", featuring Ian Hunter, Verree Teasdale and Donald Meek.

Never before have suits been as practical, wearable, well designed and cut as now. The wool fabrics vary as much as types. The bolero is still in evidence, although the long torso jacket and coat is also an outstanding favorite. For spectator sports or travel the comfortable cape and suit ensemble, left, is perfect. Both are made of nubby knits that are a new and important fashion. The suit is cafe beige, and the full-length cape is in benedictine brown. The single-breasted suit, right, is beige wool gabardine. The jacket is fitted with three pockets and has the longer line. The skirt is box pleated. The hat is a felt beret with white pique bow, and a white blouse is worn.

another which ranked high with the students. One boy described it as "displaying the true feelings of the artist by the depth in color and distance, and the realistically blue and slightly clouded sky".

Among the younger children who have visited the collection, "In Mother's Clothes", an oil painting by Martha McCloskey of East Palestine, is a favorite. Here the colors are blended well and the quaint figures of the three little girls hold a charm all their own.

A portrait of a young girl asleep in a chair is another which has attracted the eyes of the younger critics. This is painted on the back of a linoleum slab.

The society which is sponsoring this exhibit takes pride in expressing their own ideas as originally as possible. All of the artists represented have studied under famous artists and teachers of art. The collection will remain in Salem until April 17.

SALEM LADY RECOMMENDS TON JON NO. 3 AS THE VERY BEST FOR SWELLING OF ARMS AND LEGS

Claims that she suffered miserably from kidney and bladder trouble for years. Her arms and legs would swell and pain severely and her hands would become numb and useless at times. Has experienced wonderful relief since trying TON-JON No. 3.

MRS. LYDA INGLEDUE

Remarkable reports are current regarding the famous Herbal Medicines — TON JON 1-2-3. Grateful users are spreading its fame and many are astonished over the powers which these preparations appear to possess in helping some of the most obstinate and pitiful cases, results that count and it is results which are the foundation of TON-JON's fame.

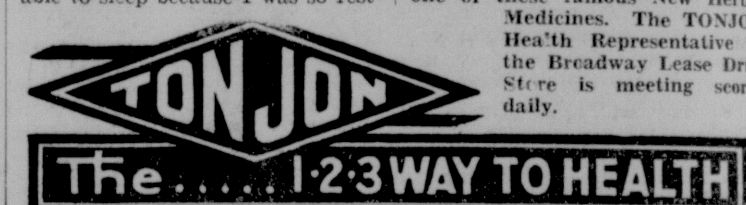

Here is an example—just one of the many right here in your home vicinity—telling what TONJON has done. It is from Mrs. Lyda Ingledue of Salem, Ohio, R. D. No. 3. Mrs. Ingledue, a member of the Friends Church says:

"For the past ten years I have suffered miserably from kidney and bladder troubles, causing excessive bloating and swelling in all parts of my body. My arms and legs would swell and pain severely and my hands would become numb and useless at times. Annoying dizzy spells were occasional. I would roll and toss all night and was unable to sleep because I was so restless and nervous. This condition kept me tired and irritable all the time.

"I did my best to find something to help me but all in vain—until I learned of TONJON No. 3 and put it to the test. It is a pleasure to tell others just how wonderful TONJON was for me. I never suffer from pitiful swellings anymore and I am free from miserable aches and pains. I sleep much better and heartily recommend TONJON No. 3 as the very best."

There is no substitute for the TONJON 1-2-3. Be sure you get one of these famous New Herbal Medicines. The TONJON Health Representative at the Broadway Lease Drug Store is meeting scores daily.

CITES DECREASE IN STATE WATER TABLE

"The water table in Ohio has dropped an average of 20 feet in 20 years, and in this district 80 feet," E. E. Kendall of the Deming company told the Youngstown section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in Republic Rubber Co. club rooms, Youngstown, Tuesday night.

Kendall said that Illinois and Pennsylvania are spending $150,000 each annually to protect their water levels while Ohio is spending only $5,000. He pointed out that London, England, has an 800-year record of its water supply.

"State-wide interest is rising," Kendall said, "and a committee of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce is approaching the question from four viewpoints, agricultural, military, municipal and industrial."

He spoke of the Tarr bill in the house of representatives "to create the Ohio water supply board and the advisory committee to the Ohio water supply board; to define their respective powers and duties, and to make appropriations therefor."

The impending necessity for duplicate wells to assist in keeping the water table up and the subterranean dam program were among other matters discussed.

AUTO INDUSTRY TO USE NEW PLASTICS

Works On New Methods
To Replace Metals
Used for War

NEW YORK—America's automobile industry, first major line to feel the pinch of priorities laid down by the Office of Production Management, today is working on methods to replace strategic metals with plastic or suitable substitutes.

This problem arises at a time when the industry is turning out passenger cars and trucks at the fastest rate in all history for this time of year, and at the same time is producing or preparing to turn out vast quantities of material for the defense program, including airplane engines and parts, munitions, tanks, and power plants for navy vessels.

Another Problem

Another perplexing obstacle ahead includes various refinements of present cars to produce the 1942 models without competing with the defense program's tooling needs.

The automobile industry is the nation's largest user of all kinds of steel, malleable iron, nickel, lead, rubber, mohair, and upholstery leather. It uses large amounts of aluminum, tin, copper, zinc, lumber, cotton, cloth, paint, lacquer, hair and padding, and asbestos.

The OPM has asked the industry to use substitutes for zinc, tin, nickel, aluminum, and magnesium. It uses little of the latter and hence this metal presents no problem. It is expected zinc used in ornamental grilles and some other parts can be replaced immediately by use of extruded plastics. In this category is acetate-butylate, made by Tennessee Eastman.

Copper, lead and cadmium are mentioned as substitutes for the valuable tin which comes to this country principally from the Far East. Tungsten is being considered as a substitute for nickel in valves. Chrome is seen as a replacement for nickel in some non-rusting alloys.

Plastics will replace some aluminum but here a problem is presented especially for the aluminum used in pistons and heads. This is not considered insurmountable.

See Growing Use

Experts visualize use of more and more plastics by the motor car industry which already uses these developments of chemistry in fair quantity. Some who look far into the future visualize use of plastics instead of steel and wood for the automobile body.

Henry Ford has announced a car having a body composed entirely of a plastic fiber with the exception of a tubular welded steel frame. A plastic car such as Ford's vision won't need paint and will be one-half as light as steel, while able to withstand a blow 10 times greater than steel without denting.

Another product mentioned for a plastic automobile body is U. S. Plywood Corporation's weldwood. This consists of laminated wood bound together with synthetic resins under heat and pressure. Experiments are reported under way on this material for automobiles. It already is being used for airplane fuselages and for many types of boats. Engineers say it can stand a harder impact than steel and also is much lighter.

Use of plastics, say engineers, would eliminate costly dies which would be especially desirable at this time when the automobile industry is needed to subordinate forward die and tool programs when necessary to expedite defense production.

The automobile industry continues to look into the future regardless of the war economy. Its experts see need of many new devices. Research Advisory Service lists some of these as:

A car which could be sold for $200 and simply be "transportation"; development and perfection of a rear engine automobile; a device to stop skidding the instant the car gets out of line; a device for making tire change easy; removal of the menace of carbon monoxide; and development of low cost, practical air-conditioning for automobiles.

IT'S Dangerous TO FLY KITES NEAR ELECTRIC WIRES

Yes, boys, kite flying is lots of fun, but pick out a nice open space to fly them in, because if that kite string of yours should tangle with one of those power wires—especially if the string happened to be wet—some of you might be killed.

And, it might put a whole power line out of commission—a line that carries light and power to hospitals and sick rooms—stores and homes and offices—city fire pumps and factories.

So, watch where you fly your kites, and another thing, NEVER use fine wire for a kite string or any metal in the kite frame or tail.

WOTAN'S WEDGE

by FRANCIS GERARD
A PRELUDE
TO BLITZKRIEG

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

The trio talked until past midnight and Sir Hector agreed with Meredith that there was a very definite "smoke in the air," but the "fire".... that they would have to find out. The chief of Intelligence promised Sir John to check up on Siegfried Klorfer and Hailey undertook to have Levinsky tagged.

It was about 12:30 a. m., when the three men relaxed in the pleasant atmosphere which comes from a consciousness of work done. They began to talk generalities.

Hailey told them how the Birmingham police had raided a house near the big reservoir and discovered small stores of alarm clocks and explosives. These they had removed together with the owner of the house who called himself Smith and who, under police "persuasion," admitted the hiding place of a whole stack of I. R. A. proclamations, manuals of instruction, etc.

"I think they were going to have a crack at the reservoir," said Hailey. "But, though we got them next day when they were getting it or the means of distribution. There must be a powerful organization in back of these fanatics. I doubt if we'll ever get on to that, in our time, at least."

"You need another stroke of luck, Hailey," smiled Meredith. "Ah, that we do," conceded the chief I. R. A. investigator.

Wherein the astute Hailey was partly wrong as was shown the next day when a lorry crashed. It was unfortunate for the lorry driver that there should have been a police car behind him, but such things will happen even with the best organized schemes.

It was a night of driving rain as a lorry swung crazily round a corner into the outskirts of Birmingham. The driving mirror, thrust out on its arm to the right, was obscured by water and only a few yards ahead was lit up by the headlights. As the lorry passed the first street lamp, one could read on its sides the words: Makyn Road Transport Company.

Two men in the driver's cab peered blindly ahead, the chauffeur's eyes glassy from long staring at the glistening road.

The man at his side was huddled into a big overcoat, a thick muffer almost concealing his small, dark beard. "You'd better slow up going through the town," he urged the driver.

"Slow up my eye!" bellowed the driver. "I've got to drive to schedule, 'aven't I? 'Sides there ain't no one on our tail."

"What is this place?" asked the man at his side, "Sutton Coldfield?"

"Sutton Coldfield, my eye!" scoffed the chauffeur. "We passed there a long way back. This is Birmin'hm or Erdin'ton, one of the bleedin' suburbs."

The big lorry swayed dizzily round a corner, and a police patrol car, parked in a side street, came to life.

"All right," said one of the police to his fellow. "Here we go! That chap's askin' for it!"

The long, low car with the illuminated "Police" on its roof slid from the curb, neatly turned a corner onto the main road, and tore after the lorry until it was sitting almost on the truck's tail-board.

Suddenly, the lorry skidded crazily with its brakes shrieking. Then came a horrible, jarring crash followed by the shrill scream of a woman. It had smashed into a private car.

The driver of the police car jammed his foot on the brakes and spun to rest half across the road, just clearing the wreck. As he switched off his engine and his companion got out of the car, they saw the lorry turn over, crashing upon its side.

The driver of the private car had been killed instantly. His woman companion, mercifully unconscious, was barely alive.

The lorry was lying on its side. Neither of its occupants gave a sign of life until suddenly there came a crash of breaking glass and the police patrol saw a man's groping hand appear.

Lights began to go on in nearby houses and, in a short while, an ambulance and wrecker car had arrived together with a squad of local police.

Both occupants of the lorry were alive, the driver badly bruised and dazed, but the other seemed to have escaped with a lump on his forehead. When free from the wreckage, the latter tried to bolt but one of the men from the police patrol caught him by the arm with, "Now then, stay where you are. You'll be wanted as a witness."

"But I have got to get to London," the man protested.

"Stay where you are, understand?" ordered the policeman.

It was found impossible for the wrecking car to move the lorry while still loaded, so the assembled police started to unload it. Then the hitherto dazed lorry driver staggered to his feet from the curb where he had been sitting after first aid and staggered across the road shouting, "Leave that there perishin' stuff alone."

"Can't move the lorry while loaded," snapped a police sergeant. "We'll take care of that!" thundered the driver. "That's my job. Leave it alone!"

It was at this point that the bearded man, who had been traveling in the lorry, came forward and suggested excitedly. "Do you think not, Sergeant, it would better be to communicate with this firm's Birmingham branch and get them this to clear for you?"

"No, I don't," replied the sergeant promptly. "And who might you be? Are you employed by Makyn's?"

"No-no, Sergeant," replied the other. "I-I merely a lift got from this fellow."

"Ho!" said the sergeant. "Did you? Well, that's against the law, too, at least on his part. No lorry drivers is allowed to take a passenger." He turned to the wretched chauffeur who was again sitting on the curb, his head in his hands.

"You're in for it, you are, m'lad. A police car on your tail; we got all the evidence we want. You'll be held for manslaughter." He turned back to the bearded man who was casting glances at the police unloading the lorry. "Now then, what's your name?"

"I can't see what you want to drag me into this for," the man protested, his excitement now under control. "I was not driving the lorry." His order of words was now correct.

"No. But you were in it. Come on, what's your name?"

"The man hesitated, then said quietly, 'Igor Levinsky.'"

"D'you mind spelling it?" continued the sergeant.

The lorry was loaded with gear cog-wheels packed in wooden cases, many of which had been smashed in the collision and had spilled their contents all over the interior of the lorry and the nearby road. These packing cases bore the name of some Glasgow manufacturers.

The lorry was almost cleared when the police made the find which was to prove so important.

At the extreme bottom of the lorry, just behind the driver's cab, two thick cardboard boxes were discovered. They were each about two feet long, six inches wide and one foot deep. They were unlabelled.

"Ere's, the last of them," said a policeman working inside the lorry. "Lumme, they're heavier than they look! 'Ere give us a hand."

As two policemen picked up the first of the cardboard boxes, the bottom suddenly ripped, the contents falling into the road.

"Elo! What are these?" someone asked. "They're different 'n' the rest of the stuff."

"Lumme!" yelled the sergeant, open-mouthed. "Lumme" he repeated, "I ain't seen one of these since the War. Blimy, lads, they're detonators 'Ere," he swung round to the lorry driver, "what d'you know about these 'ere detonators?"

The word went round the group of policemen. Detonators. And that there house, not a mile and a half down the road, raided yesterday with all that I. R. A. stuff discovered, thanks to the Scotland Yard tip-off. Detonators, eh!

"Well, m'lad, went on the sergeant, 'what've got to say?'"

"It's orl right, it's for a job in Sussex where they're blasting. It's all legal."

"Let's have a look at your book."

The lorry's papers were retrieved from the wrecked cab and the sergeant, huddled into a doorway from the rain thumbed through them while one of his men held an electric torch.

"Right," he said at length. "Nothin' about detonators here. Bring 'im along. And you, too, Mr. whatever-your-name is."

"But I have got to London go," expostulated Levinsky.

"Can't help that. You're coming with us."

Later it developed that Levinsky had nothing to do with the lorry or its company the driver exonerating him from all blame; he said that the Londoner was merely a passenger picked up in Glasgow.

Levinsky was allowed to go after leaving his address and promising to appear as a witness when the driver should be brought up for trial.

The next day Hailey heard about the detonator affair. Within an hour, Meredith was laying down his home telephone and his smile was like the smile sometimes imagined on the face of a tiger!

At 3 p. m. the following day Sir John Meredith walked into Sir Hector McAllister's office at that discreet house in Pont Street where he saw the other detectives already assembled.

Sir Hector was at his big desk engrossed in drawing an elephant of astounding proportions on his blotting paper. Hailey was staring at a large scale map, planning his summer holiday; while Chief Inspector Bradford, dreamily staring at the wall, was doing nothing at all. Within a minute, the quartet got down to business.

"Now you're certain, Hailey, that the Birmingham police know what to do?" asked Meredith.

"Absolutely," replied the Chief Inspector. "They're going to keep their mouths shut as we asked them to. Most of them believe it's

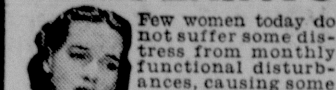

I. R. A. stuff. You don't, do you, Meredith?"

Sir John shook his head with, "No, I don't."

How To Relieve Distress Of FEMALE PERIODIC COMPLAINTS

Few women today do not suffer some distress from monthly functional disturbances, causing some to get nervous, cranky, mildly depressed a couple of days before, with dark circles under eyes, an uncomfortable bloated heaviness—others to feel weak, "dragged out" for a couple of days afterward.

Draft And Defense Work Pare Possible Entry List; 14 Scheduled To Start Play

Plans have been completed for the seventh annual Little Cities tournament, which will swing into action at the Memorial building Friday and Saturday. Joe Kelley, meet director, announced today. Fourteen teams have made their entries.

The tourney was greatly handicapped this year because of the draft and defense preparations. Approximately seven or eight outfits that participated last year could not come because of these reasons. The Kent Collegians, last year's champs and veteran entry, were forced to give up their title defense because the draft has taken key players.

The complete list of entries follows: Parma Heights, Parma, Dover, Hainesville, Hubbard, Garrettsville, Newell, Canton Township, Boris of New Brighton, and the five Salem teams, Hainesville's Restaurant, Altohouse Motors, Wigger's Service, Carroll Club and Saxons.

To various cagers and teams listed above will go approximately 65 handsome trophies.

The meet, however, will have its turn of star performers. Parma Heights will come here with three cagers of the Cleveland Chase Brass club that captured the Cleveland City tourney a few weeks ago. Dover will have a number of former high school stars, including Sewell and Zuehne, Louisville will bring the team that reached the semi-finals in the East Liverpool Junior tournament.

Garrettsville will probably have the entire Hiram college five as its representative. Newell, Hubbard, Canton Township and the New Brighton Boris will have collegiate court stars from their respective districts.

And last, but not least, the five Salem entries will include many of the outstanding performers of the city and vicinity.

Drawings were held at the Memorial building this morning for bracket positions and times which follow:

Friday
7 p. m.—Garrettsville vs Hainesville Restaurant.
7:45—Dover vs Wigger's Service.
8:30—Saxons vs. Canton Township.
9:15—Newell vs. Altohouse Motors.
10—Louisville vs. Carroll Club.
Saturday

3 — Winner Saxon-Canton vs. Winner Garrettsville-Hainesville.

Christian Cagers Continue Streak

The league-leading Christians continued their drive for the second half title in the Class C loop last night at the Memorial building as they swamped the Nazarenes under a 55-21 count.

The Presbyterians won from St. Paul, 39 to 28.

GREG RICE UNFIT, SAYS DRAFT BOARD

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 26.—Greg Rice, who hasn't lost a race at two or three miles in two years, is physically unfit for army service, selective service officials disclosed today.

Rice, a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, holds the two and three mile run records and was the winner of the 1940 Sullivan award. Draft officials said a triple hernia makes the stocky distance star unfit for military service. He recently underwent a physical examination after being called by a St. Joseph county, Indiana, draft board.

Only last Saturday Rice ran the fastest two miles on record, turning the distance in 8:51.1 at the Chicago relays.

TOWNSEND SENDS TOURNEY CHECKS

COLUMBUS, March 27.—Bonus checks totaling $2,720 were mailed today by Commissioner H. R. Townsend to 32 Ohio high school basketball teams which participated in the 15th Annual State Scholastic Cage tourney here last weekend.

Each team received an $85 bonus for every game played in the tourney, a new all-time high, Townsend said.

Martins Perry and Glenford, Class A and B champions, respectively, and Lakewood and Canfield, the runners-up, received the largest checks—$340 each. The bonuses were in addition to team expenses.

Valuable Cows
MIDDLEBOURNE, W. Va.—William Mercer's cows showed him where to find oil the farmer told friends.

Mercer noticed his cows' noses were greasy and their milk had a gassy odor. Then he found oil covering his spring and gas bubbling up, so he built a dam. Now he is collecting about a barrel of crude a day.

He attributed the oil in the water to repressuring activities in an old oil field.

YANKEES PICKED OVER CLEVELAND HITLESS WONDERS

Writer Asserts Improved Hitting, Hurling Will Win for N. York

BY GAYLE TALBOT
TAMPA, Fla., March 27.—If nothing serious happens to them between here and there, those old, familiar New York Yankees should win the coming American league race by about five games—maybe ten.

Next October (this is strictly a hunch) we'll all be sitting around the dressing room in Yankee stadium, redolent of oil of wintergreen, and asking of managers Joe McCarthy: "Well, Joe, how does it feel to win five times in six years?"

And Joe, never a man to do a lot of talking in such historic moments, will clear his throat and utter the following immortal word: "swell!"

All of which is heresy, of course, because it is common knowledge that the Cleveland Indians were thwarted only by internal trouble last year and should sail through harmoniously behind the 30-game pitching of Bobby Feller this time.

But, watching them play down here, it is difficult to understand what happened to the Yankees last year.

While the Cleveland club, training further south at Fort Myers, has continued to suffer from last year's chronic ailment of not hitting the ball, the Yankees have been knocking it out of the lot. Charlie Keller, Bill Dickey and Red Rolfe, all victims of let-downs last year, are meeting the ball squarely again.

That, it seems to us, sums up the most important news from the training camps. Not only are the Yankees hitting again, but their fielding has been spectacular and their pitching better than good. Even the veteran Lefty Gomez is threatening to make a comeback.

POLLY AND HER PALS

BOWLING RESULTS

The battle for first place in the Pastime league saw the first three teams falter on the Grate alleys last night while the fourth place Salem Labels became a threat as they took the leading Firestone Tires for three in a row.

The three losses pulled Firestones down to a tie with Eatons, who won two from Albrights. Citizens Ice fell from a tie with Eatons as the fast-stepping Tysons grabbed two of their three-game series. The Ioemen are now one game behind the two leaders and two and a half games ahead of the Labelmen.

Tyson's won the first two from Citizens Ice on games of 943 and 915 and while their third game of 881 was not good enough to win, it made a three-game total of 2739, the second highest league series of the season. Eatons still claim high with 2743. Bill Pauline of the Citizens Ice piled up a 237 in one game and Walt Hubbard of the Ioemen, Bill Hull, Gene Pugh, Paul Scullion and Art Shinn of Tysons reached the 200 mark.

Jim Jackson hit 223 and Wink Miller 200 as their Label team swept the series from Firestones.

Wright's Southpaws continued their winning streak by dropping Hainans three times, although Doc Hawkins of Hainans chalked up a 245, high game of the night. Red White and Bob Wright of the Southpaws tallied a 200 each.

Although Albrights dropped two to Eatons, they gave the leaders a scare in the last game. Clyde White hit 226 and Dick Albright 220 for the Realtors.

Loudons took three from Martin Tires on a forfeit and the Schloans won two from Sponsellers. A 223 was Sponseller's contribution in the second game.

The Ohio Edison, taking three from the Elks, now trail the first-place Kresge's, who won two from Mullins, by a game and a half in the Masonic Ladies' league. Caldwell of Kresge's turned in a 204 in her second game.

The Salem News remained five games behind the Ohio Edison as it trimmed the Bankerettes three straight while Wark's were gaining a similar verdict over the Eagles.

INDIANS CARRY 16 HURLERS, REST OF ROSTER IS PARED

Tribe Infield, Outfield Is Cut To Regulation Season's Size

(By Associated Press)
FORT MYERS, Fla., March 27.—The pennant-conscious Cleveland Indians, hoping that superior pitching will offset inferior batting, will start their homeward journey tomorrow with 16 hurlers in the squad of 30.

The remainder of the squad has been whittled down to regulation size and with the possible exception of one outfielder, the five players yet to go will be pitchers. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh has until May 15 to make the final cut to 25.

Optioning of 20-year-old Jim Hegan to Oklahoma City left the club with two catchers, Rolfe Hemsley and Gene Desautels. Both are 33.

The infield has been pared to the bone with only Hal Trosky, Ray Mack, Lou Boudreau, Ken Keltner, Russ Peters and Oscar Grimes left. Gerry Walker, Roy Weatherly, Jeff Heath, Beau Bell, Clarence Campbell and Murray Howell comprise the outer defense. If Peckinpaugh knocks off a man here, it probably will be Campbell or Howell.

Backache, leg pains may be danger sign of tired kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there's something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 49 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.
